Contents

PREFACE .................................................................................................................. x

PART A: GETTING READY FOR CONNECTED SPEECH

SECTION 1 Helping Students Understand That Written and Spoken English Are Different

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Module</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Author</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1.1</td>
<td>Written English Does Not Have Enough Letters</td>
<td>James Dean Brown</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.2</td>
<td>Word Cloud</td>
<td>Jeff Stewart</td>
<td>9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.3</td>
<td>Phoneme Variations: Two/To and Four/For</td>
<td>Manna Aoki</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.4</td>
<td>One Spelling, Three Sounds</td>
<td>Masao Tada</td>
<td>13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.5</td>
<td>Teaching the Flap Sound With a Dialog</td>
<td>Keita Kikuchi</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.6</td>
<td>Connected Speech Diary: Differences Between Written and Spoken English</td>
<td>James Dean Brown</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

SECTION 2 Preparing Students to Accept the Ideas of Connected Speech

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Module</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Author</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2.1</td>
<td>Whaddaya Say?</td>
<td>Brian Nuspliger</td>
<td>21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.2</td>
<td>Listening for Connected Speech</td>
<td>Michael Wilkins</td>
<td>24</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.3</td>
<td>Teaching Suprasegmentals Through TOEIC Materials</td>
<td>Koji Hayakawa</td>
<td>26</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.4</td>
<td>Teaching Common Reduced Forms in Connected Speech</td>
<td>Max Praver</td>
<td>29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.5</td>
<td>Introducing Connected Speech Through Songs</td>
<td>Jack Brajcich</td>
<td>33</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.6</td>
<td>Noticing Connected Speech in the Environment</td>
<td>Angelus Cú Mara</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.7</td>
<td>The Connected Speech Diary Continues</td>
<td>James Dean Brown</td>
<td>40</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

SECTION 3 Word Stress

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Module</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Author</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3.1</td>
<td>Country Word-Stress Rules</td>
<td>Ian Ellsworth</td>
<td>42</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.2</td>
<td>Clapping With Stress</td>
<td>Manna Aoki</td>
<td>44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Module</td>
<td>Title</td>
<td>Author(s)</td>
<td>Page</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>--------</td>
<td>----------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>-----------------------------------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.3</td>
<td>How to Perfect Perfect English: The Role of Syntax in Word Stress</td>
<td>Brian Nuspliger</td>
<td>46</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.4</td>
<td>Same Word, Different Stress: Nouns and Verbs</td>
<td>Jack Brajcich</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.5</td>
<td>Word Stress and Vocabulary for the Listening Section of the TOEIC</td>
<td>Koji Hayakawa</td>
<td>53</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.6</td>
<td>The Connected Speech Diary Version 3</td>
<td>James Dean Brown</td>
<td>56</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>SECTION 4 Schwa and Weak vs. Strong Forms</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.1</td>
<td>Schwa, the Secret Vowel</td>
<td>Jeff Stewart</td>
<td>58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.2</td>
<td>Connecting Speech With Schwa</td>
<td>Max Praver</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.3</td>
<td>Let’s Have a Party With Schwa!</td>
<td>Harumi Kimura</td>
<td>63</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.4</td>
<td>Strong and Weak Forms of Words</td>
<td>Max Praver</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.5</td>
<td>How Can I Get To . . . ? Learn and Practice Weak Forms of Prepositions</td>
<td>Harumi Kimura</td>
<td>69</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.6</td>
<td>Weak Forms and Strong Forms: To, Two, and Too</td>
<td>Yukie Iwamura</td>
<td>72</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.7</td>
<td>Function Words Are Hard to Hear</td>
<td>Kazuya Sawada</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.8</td>
<td>Reduction of Auxiliary Verbs</td>
<td>Angelus Cú Mara</td>
<td>78</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4.9</td>
<td>The Connected Speech Diary Version 4</td>
<td>James Dean Brown</td>
<td>80</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>PART B: Connected Speech Mechanisms</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.1</td>
<td>Some Words Are Emphasized in English</td>
<td>Keita Kikuchi</td>
<td>84</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.2</td>
<td>Handclap the Rhythm of English</td>
<td>Jeff Stewart</td>
<td>87</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.3</td>
<td>There’s a Big Wolf in the Dark Woods</td>
<td>Yukie Iwamura</td>
<td>89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.4</td>
<td>One-Breath Reading</td>
<td>Hioko Yoshida</td>
<td>91</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.5</td>
<td>Practicing Stress Timing</td>
<td>James G. Cassidy</td>
<td>93</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.6</td>
<td>I Like STRESS</td>
<td>Carla Swinehart</td>
<td>97</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.7</td>
<td>Stress-Timing Practice</td>
<td>Aaron Gibson</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.8</td>
<td>Decision Making</td>
<td>Reiko Yoshihara</td>
<td>104</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Module 5.9 The Connected Speech Diary Version 5,
James Dean Brown ........................................... 107

SECTION 6 Transitions

Module 6.1 The Same Consonant Twice in a Row (Consonant-to-Consonant Transitions), Kazuya Kawanami ............ 109

Module 6.2 Good Dog, Bad Dog (Consonant-to-Consonant Transitions), Manna Aoki ............................. 112

Module 6.3 If You’re Happy… (Consonant-to-Consonant Transitions), Carla Swinehart ................................. 115

Module 6.4 Let’s Play Bingo! (Consonant-to-Consonant Transitions), Reiko Yoshihara .......................... 117

Module 6.5 She’s Out Right Now (/t/-to-Consonant Transitions), Yukie Iwamura .............................. 120

Module 6.6 A Soccer Ball…Kick It! A Red Apple…Eat It! (Consonant-to-Vowel Transition), Yoshiko Mizobe 124

Module 6.7 Connect the Words (Vowel-to-Consonant and Consonant-to-Vowel Transitions), James Dean Brown .............................. 126

Module 6.8 An Apple, A Pear (Vowel-to-Vowel vs. Vowel-to-Consonant Transitions: /n/ Insertion?), James Dean Brown ................................. 128

Module 6.9 Separate Those Vowels With a Consonant (Vowel-to-Vowel Transitions), James Dean Brown .............................. 130

Module 6.10 Video Review of Transitions, Keita Kikuchi ................................................................. 134

Module 6.11 How to Make a Cup of Tea (Further Review), Kumi Shimazu .................................................. 136

Module 6.12 The Connected Speech Diary Version 6, James Dean Brown ........................................... 138

SECTION 7 Dropping Sounds

Module 7.1 Where’d That Vowel Go?, James Dean Brown ............... 140

Module 7.2 Dropping Vowels Depends on What Came Before, James Dean Brown ........................................... 143

Module 7.3 Dropping Vowels Elsewhere in Words, Keita Kikuchi ....... 146

Module 7.4 Vowel Dropping in the Second Syllable, James Dean Brown ........................................... 149

Module 7.5 Disappearing /t/, Larry Davis ...................................................... 151
Module 7.6 Famous People (Dropping /t/ and /d/), Masaki Seo . . . . 154
Module 7.7 Rentin’ an Apartment, Reiko Yoshihara . . . . 159
Module 7.8 No Stress, No /h/, Angelus Că Mara . . . . 161
Module 7.9 Dropping /h/ and /ð/: Does ‘e Smoke?, Manna Aoki . . . . 163
Module 7.10 The Connected Speech Diary Version 7, James Dean Brown . . . . 166

SECTION 8 Inserting Sounds
Module 8.1 Cats, Dogs, and Horses, James Dean Brown . . . . 168
Module 8.2 Plural Pronunciation: /s/, /z/, /ɛz/, Carla Swinehart . . . . 171
Module 8.3 Tapped, Moved, and Patted, James Dean Brown . . . . 175
Module 8.4 Dowa Deer: /j/ and /w/ Insertion, Ian Ellsworth . . . . 178
Module 8.5 Adding Sounds to Make English Smooth, Ann Johnstun . . . . 180
Module 8.6 Syllable Structure Affects /j/ and /w/ Insertion, James Dean Brown . . . . 183
Module 8.7 The Connected Speech Diary Version 8, James Dean Brown . . . . 186

SECTION 9 Changing Sounds
Module 9.1 Word-Final -s, Larry Davis . . . . 188
Module 9.2 Teaching Assimilation With Telephone Numbers, Ian Ellsworth . . . . 191
Module 9.3 Assimilation in Connected Speech: How We Listen to What We Hear, Kazuya Kawanami . . . . 193
Module 9.4 Could You Tell Me What You Were Told Yesterday?, Yukio Shimodaira . . . . 197
Module 9.5 Practice With Palatalization, Larry Davis . . . . 199
Module 9.6 Reciprocal Assimilation of /t d s z/ + You, Reiko Yoshihara . . . . 202
Module 9.7 Should It Be V or B?, James Dean Brown . . . . 205
Module 9.8 The Consonant Sound /n/ Changes to /m/ or /ŋ/ When . . . . , James Dean Brown . . . . 208
Module 9.9 When Does /nd/ Change to /m/ and /nt/ to /ŋ/?, James Dean Brown . . . . 211
Module 9.10 The Connected Speech Diary Version 9,
James Dean Brown ...................................................... 214

SECTION 10 Contractions and Blending

Module 10.1 Contraction Crossword, James Dean Brown ........ 216
Module 10.2 Listening and Contractions, James Dean Brown .... 219
Module 10.3 She’s Name Is . . . Learning Contractions in Natural Speech, Mitsuyo Nakano ................................. 223
Module 10.4 Disappearing /t/ in Negative Contractions,
Larry Davis ............................................................ 228
Module 10.5 Negative Contractions: There’s Not vs.
There Isn’t, Arthur A. Nakano ...................................... 231
Module 10.6 Is It I’ll, Aisle, or Isle?, James Dean Brown ....... 233
Module 10.7 Common Be Contractions and Wh- Blendings,
James Dean Brown .................................................. 236
Module 10.8 Answering Yes/No Questions, Stephen Saxe ....... 240
Module 10.9 The Connected Speech Diary Version 10,
James Dean Brown ................................................... 244

PART C: Putting Connected Speech All Together

SECTION 11 Question Forms

Module 11.1 Yes/No Questions: Did You?, Arthur A. Nakano ... 248
Module 11.2 Yes/No Questions: Uh-Huh and Uh-Uh, Stephen Saxe . 250
Module 11.3 Yes/No Questions: Can You…?, Carla Swinehart .... 253
Module 11.4 Yes/No Questions: Who Is Your Fiancé?,
Yukie Iwamura ....................................................... 259
Module 11.5 Yes/No Questions: Bingo! Get the Third-Person
Questions Right, Yukio Shimodaira ................................. 263
Module 11.6 Tag Questions: Can’t You?, Arthur A. Nakano ....... 267
Module 11.7 Wh- Questions: Focus on Pronouns, Aaron Gibson ... 270
Module 11.8 Wh- Questions: Whadda-ya?, Masao Tada .......... 273
Module 11.9 Wh- Questions: Listening and Understanding,
Yoshiko Mizobe .................................................... 275
Module 11.10 Wh- Questions: Wh- chants, Mitsuyo Nakano ....... 278
Module 11.11 The Connected Speech Diary Version 11,
James Dean Brown ................................. 282

SECTION 12 Functions
Module 12.1 Greetings!, Nathanael Rudolph. ....................... 284
Module 12.2 Accepting and Rejecting in Dating Situations:
Wanna Go Out?, Nathanael Rudolph. .......................... 287
Module 12.3 Asking and Confirming: Where Is My Suitcase?,
Kumi Shimazu ............................................. 292
Module 12.4 Asking for Clarification: Whajasay?,
Nathanael Rudolph ....................................... 295
Module 12.5 Correcting Information: Getting the Stress Right,
Hiroko Yoshida ........................................... 297
Module 12.6 Expressing Emotions, Hiroko Yoshida. ............... 298
Module 12.7 The Connected Speech Diary Version 12,
James Dean Brown ....................................... 300

SECTION 13 Modal and Auxiliary Verb Phrases
Module 13.1 Poor Jonny: Practicing Does Not, Stephen Saxe .... 302
Module 13.2 Wouldn’t It Be Nice?, Masaki Seo ........................ 305
Module 13.3 Lookerup-in-Yer-Dikshunery, James G. Cassidy. .... 310
Module 13.4 High-Frequency Sound Changes, Masao Tada. ....... 315
Module 13.5 Fortunes Come and Go: Have To, Could Have, and Wouldn’t Have, Harumi Kimura. ............................ 317
Module 13.6 What Are You Going To . . . ?, Masaki Seo  ............ 321
Module 13.7 Understanding U.S. Teachers, Masaki Seo .............. 324
Module 13.8 I Hafta Study English Cuz I’m Gonna Work in the U.S., Yukio Shimodaira .............................. 329
Module 13.9 Modals With Have: I Shoulda, Coulda, Woulda,
Masao Tada ............................................... 332
Module 13.10 The Connected Speech Diary Version 13,
James Dean Brown ....................................... 335
SECTION 14 Teaching Techniques

Module 14.2 From Awareness to Control to Automaticity at the Utterance Level, Yoshiko Ishibashi .......................... 339

Module 14.3 Awareness to Controlled Processing to Automaticity in Short Puzzle Segments, Yoshiko Ishibashi .......................... 343

Module 14.4 Teaching Automaticity: The Two-Line Game, Michael Wilkins .................................................. 347

Module 14.5 Shadowing Native Speech, Atsuko Misaki .......................... 350

Module 14.6 Listen to Lyrics and Discover Linking!, Atsuko Misaki .......................... 352

Module 14.7 The Connected Speech Diary Version 14, James Dean Brown .......................... 355

Part D: References

References .................................................. 359
PREFACE

I have been interested in teaching connected speech in English as a second or foreign language (ESL or EFL) since 1980. At that time, I was teaching advanced EFL for the specific purposes of science and technology at the Guangzhou English Language Center in China. My students were in the first wave of scientists to go abroad from China in the early 1980s. They were bright, hard-working, and very observant. One day, one of them asked why it was that he could understand me when I talked in class, but could not understand when I talked with other American teachers. Clearly, the student was okay with my English when I was using the relatively clear and precise version often called teacher talk, but he was unable to understand when I used natural, relaxed, informal North American English (NAE) with my American colleagues. This is how I came to understand the need for teaching the connected speech of NAE.

In the process of trying to do a good job of teaching connected speech, I have returned repeatedly to the literatures on ESL/EFL pronunciation, speaking, and listening. I have found a bit here and a bit there on topics related to connected speech but with only one exception (a fairly technical linguistic treatment by Shockey, 2003), nothing that pulls the topic together in a single place. Certainly nothing that would be comprehensive and yet directly relevant to instructors interested in teaching connected speech. Because I found so little in the literature and because I had the training and willingness to do so, I decided to try to fill this gap in the resources available to ESL/EFL teachers. I began this process by editing a collection of articles on the topic of connected speech with my wife (Brown & Kondo-Brown, 2006a). The current book extends my efforts to provide resources to teachers on teaching connected speech by providing a collection of lesson-sized modules that are directly useful and applicable to teaching various aspects of connected speech in the ESL/EFL classroom. These modules were created by teachers for teachers, and I hope they will be applied widely for the benefit of ESL/EFL students everywhere.

I would like to finish this Preface by dwelling for just a bit on the notion of connected speech by defining it here in terms of what connected speech is and what it is not. Then I’ll present some of the arguments I’ve worked out elsewhere for why we should teach connected speech in our ESL or EFL classrooms.

What Connected Speech Is and Is Not

To many linguists and teachers, connected speech is the colloquial speech that native speakers use in everyday informal situations. However, I argue that connected speech is used in all native speaker talk, however to a lesser degree in very formal speech, to a greater degree in normal conversation, and to an even greater degree in colloquial or intimate conversation. Connected speech is based on a set of rules used to modify the citation, or dictionary, pronunciations of words so they connect and flow more smoothly in natural speech. These rules have to do with word and utterance stress, the use of strong and weak forms of words; vowel and consonant reduction; syllable and word linking; the dropping of sounds, syllables, and words; inserting sounds; assimilation of sounds; contractions; and so forth. Readers will see in this book that such rules can (and should) be explained and taught, and that fun and interesting ESL/EFL lessons can be based on them. Note that, in the language teaching literature, connected speech is also known as colloquial speech, casual speech, colloquial speech, fast speech, informal speech, reduced speech, reduced forms, relaxed speech, sandhi variation, and probably many other names. Regardless of what it is called, the definition and the importance of the concept are the same.

What connected speech is not is lazy, sloppy, careless, slovenly, substandard, nonstandard, illiterate, low-class, low-status, or vulgar. These would all be types of speech that are noticeably different from the accepted standard. In contrast, when used in the appropriate situations, connected speech is not noticed at all by native speakers of English. This is why I have chosen to call it connected speech rather than some of the other labels listed above, and why I am completely non-judgmental about it.

Why ESL/EFL Instructors Should Teach Connected Speech

In my view, there are at least a dozen reasons that ESL/EFL instructors should teach connected speech:

1. Connected speech is a very real part of the English language.
2. Students need to learn more about pronunciation than the phonemes, which we traditionally teach in isolation, that is, they need to learn connected speech.
3. Teaching pronunciation by discussing only the phonemes is like giving the students a pile of bricks and expecting them to be able to put them together and make a building; it is important to teach the phonemes but explaining how they change in different contexts is also important.
4. To use pragmatically appropriate English, students need to be able to adjust to various sorts of contextual constraints; understanding and using appropriate connected speech is a part of making such adjustments.
5. Connected speech is not just a sign of lazy, sloppy, careless, or slovenly English.
6. Connected speech is used in English at all levels formality (Hartmann & Stork, 1976, p. 136, after M. Joos, 1966) even very formal speech.
7. Connected speech plays an important “accentuation” role (Gimson, 2001, p. 249) and non-native speakers (NNS) of English need to understand that fact in order to appropriately comprehend and produce comprehensible spoken English.

8. The research shows that NNS have problems both comprehending and producing connected speech (Bley-Vroman & Kweon, 2002; Brown & Hilferty, 1986a, 1986b, 2006; Carreira, 2008; Henrichsen, 1984; Ito, 2001, 2006a; Kim, 1995; and Kweon, 2000).

9. Research also shows that connected speech can be taught to NNS (Brown & Hilferty, 1986a, 1986b, 2006; Carreira, 2008; Ito, 2006b, Crawford, 2005; Matsuzawa, 2006; Melenca, 2001).

10. Native speakers of English tend to feel that connected speech is friendlier, more natural, more sympathetic, and more personal. Is there any reason why NNS would prefer to be viewed as unfriendly, unnatural, unsympathetic, and impersonal?

11. Certain types of English may sound prissy, cold, or just plain ridiculous when spoken in a precise disconnected, English-textbook manner.

12. Perhaps most interesting to teachers, students actually enjoy learning about connected speech (Carreira, 2008).

Surely, one or more of these 12 reasons for teaching connected speech will resonate with any ESL/EFL teacher. If so, continue reading because you may find the teaching modules in this book very useful indeed. If not, continue anyway because the modules themselves may convince you of the usefulness of teaching connected speech. Mahalo.¹

James Dean Brown
Kāne‘ohe, Hawai‘i, February 1, 2012

¹n.b., I think mahalo in Hawaiian means: “I live in Hawaii and you don’t, nani nani boo boo!” But I could be wrong