Overview of Changes to New Governance Model

Following the release of the proposed new governance model and preliminary transition timeline in March 2015, the Board of Directors received a variety of questions and feedback from members and groups. Based on this feedback, the model and timeline were clarified and revised.

The following overview outlines the revisions, which pertain mainly to Committees and Councils. These build upon the original proposal disseminated in March 2015, and were approved by a vote of the Board of Directors in August.

Changes to Committees

The original proposal outlined maintaining five Committees: Executive, Finance, Nominating, Research, and Awards. The remaining Committees would either be dissolved, or transitioned to Advisory Councils. However, upon further review it was clear that there were inconsistencies in terms of those bodies that remained as committees.

The new governance model will now only have three Committees, and they will be labeled as Governance Committees:

- Executive Committee
- Finance Committee
- Nominating Committee

Each serves a core function related to governance of the Association. Moreover, members of Governance Committees are selected by election of the membership, either by election as an officer, to the Board of Directors, or to the Nominating Committee.

Changes to Councils

Much of the feedback received by the Board of Directors sought clarification on the new Councils. In consideration of this feedback, the following revisions have been made:

- Name revised from Advisory Council to Professional Council – The name has been changed to better highlight the fact that membership on the new Councils reflects individual knowledge and expertise.
- Reporting lines revised – The lines of authority among the Board, Councils, and the Executive Director have been revised to illustrate the close working relationship the Councils will have with staff, as well as their connection with the Board.

It should be noted that the new Professional Councils maintain the same status as the previous Standing Committees.

Transition Plans

The transition to the new governance model will take place in several phases over the next 18-24 months outlined as follows:
• Phase 1 – September 2015 – April 2016
  o Changes to Committees and creation of new Professional Councils
  o Development and adoption of new framework for governing documents
• Phase 2 – May 2016 – May 2017
  o Consideration, and possible implementation, of recommendations from
    ▪ IS Task Force
    ▪ Affiliate Task Force ▪ Convention Task Force
  o Implementation of communication processes for Interest Sections
  o Development of leadership ladder and a process for recruiting, retaining, and recognizing TESOL volunteers
  o Clarification of member resolution process
  o Development of regular review process for programs and entities

Committees that will be dissolved should plan on submitting their final report to the Board of Directors in mid-September and should complete any remaining work by the end of the year. These Committees will have the option to meet for a final time at the 2016 TESOL International Convention and should coordinate with their Staff Liaison if they plan to do so.

Committees that will become Professional Councils will continue to operate as Committees through the end of the 2016 TESOL International Convention, and will work with Staff and the Board of Directors on the new processes and procedures. Following the 2016 TESOL International Convention, these Committees will begin operating as Professional Councils. Members of the Committees will be grandfathered in as the members of each Council, and their terms will be honored. However, members will be provided the opportunity to opt out of serving on a given Council even if their terms have not officially expired Committees that will continue as Governance Committees will generally see few changes. However, they should discuss and implement any changes as needed.

Moving Forward
Because the details of this new governance model are still being developed, expect that there will be periods of ambiguity. However, this is the final plan and the dialogue that has started with this process will need to continue. In this ever-changing world, the Association is committed to moving forward and adapting to the challenges and demands of the field today. However, significant change can’t come about without your help. Your input and participation are critical in making sure that TESOL International Association remains vibrant, relevant, and responsive to the needs of members and the field. The Executive Committee, the Board of Directors, and the Staff can be reached at any time with comments or questions.
